PREFATORY NOTE

The literature relating to railways is found to a considerable extent in books, pamphlets, and other publications which have been privately issued, and much of it is buried in official reports, committee hearings, and government documents. It comprises comparatively few comprehensive treatises.

Therefore the student of railway transportation finds it impossible to secure access to any all-embracing sources of information in any one of even the largest general libraries.

The Bureau of Railway Economics has undertaken to record the works relating to the economics of railway transportation that are catalogued in thirteen of the principal libraries, together with those in its own collection.

As only the catalogued material in these libraries is here recorded, this is in no sense a complete bibliography. The literature in periodicals, in collections of miscellaneous papers, in general works containing railway material, and in all but the most important state and federal documents is thus omitted from the present record.

Certain classes of material, such as guides, time-tables, tariffs, maps and atlases, books on general railway law, law cases and briefs, have also been omitted, while certain works of a more or less technical nature have been included because of the historical or economic significance of part of their contents.

Titles are entered but once and under rather broad classification, but an index of names is supplied. So far as practicable the catalogue usage of the Library of Congress has been followed.

No attempt has been made to indicate changes in the name of a railroad, the reports being listed alphabetically according to the corporate title at the time of issue.
